

Keeping your car in good shape when staying in the long term parking at the Gold Coast Airport

The most exciting time of the year has finally arrived and you are ready to travel to your holiday destination. However, there is one more thing you have to take care of before you leave if you are driving your car to the airport and leaving it there for the whole time you will be away.

If travelling from the Gold Coast you will need to leave your car at the Gold Coast Airport long-term parking. However, before you leave it there you need to make sure everything will be fine while you are away. You don't want to return after your trip to discover that your car is not working properly or even starting at all because you didn't take the necessary precautions.

You may ask yourself what could possibly happen to your car while it stays at the long term parking area of Coolangatta airport. There is nothing more frustrating than returning from a long journey and try to start your car without success. Definitely, this is something you don't need when you have flown for several hours and come back tired and with the only wish to be home as soon as possible.

By taking only a few minutes of preparation before you embark on a trip, you could avoid these problems. Here are some tips to prepare your vehicle for the long stay at the car park while you are away.

Disconnect the battery

When cars are not used for a long period of time the battery will start to drain, potentially resulting in you not being able to start the car – especially if you have an older battery. It only takes a minute to disconnect. Simply pop open the bonnet and disconnect the negative conductor by loosening the nut and pulling it off. This way you make sure your car will be ready to take you home as soon as you arrive.

Fully inflate your tyres

Just like the battery draining due to inactivity, the air pressure in your tyres can decrease over time and can become flat if they are not inflated to the right pressure. Even a tiny leak will result in a completely flat tyre by the time you return from a long journey. Make sure the pressure in your tyres is at the right level according to your car model.

For More Information Visit <http://www.ezyparking.com.au/>